DETERGENTS AND EQUIPMENT

In the world of cleaning agents, they can generally be divided into two main types: acidic and basic (alkaline) detergents. It's crucial to know which type to use on each surface to prevent chemical damage. If a surface could react with an acidic detergent, only a basic detergent should be used.

In cases where it's necessary to use an acidic detergent, such as for removing limescale from taps, it must be done with great care, and the detergent should be rinsed off immediately after use to prevent damage to the surface.

Surfaces may be made of various materials:

- Wood - may react with acidic detergents.
- Metal - also may react.
- Plastic - will not react.
- Glass - will not react.
- Any type of stone or Caesarstone flooring - will react.
- Any type of ceramic, porcelain flooring - will probably not react.

Regarding equipment, the best way to clean surfaces is with a microfiber cloth, which gathers both dust and tough stains and helps disinfect surfaces. For cleaning floors, we also use a microfiber cloth.

Before washing or wiping a floor, especially if it's wooden, it's recommended to vacuum it first. Therefore, a vacuum cleaner is recommended, particularly for cleaning carpets, sofas, and other fabrics. Gloves will help protect from any strong detergents. We prefer to use a non-scratching Scotch-Brite for cleaning tough stains, rather than a hard or white sponge that might leave marks on the surface being cleaned.

RECOMMENDED CLEANING PRODUCTS

For everyday cleaning of regular surfaces, we recommend a basic cleaning agent such as soap or any non-acidic general surface cleaner. Our preferred choice is «Fairy,» which is highly concentrated and leaves surfaces clean and shiny. However, if you prefer an alternative, any non-acidic general surface cleaner will do the job.

To tackle tough stains, limescale buildup, or for disinfecting purposes, we recommend «Anti-Calc» by Sano or «Ruby» by Suter. These products are effective in cleaning and disinfecting surfaces, removing limescale, and eliminating stubborn stains, ensuring a perfect result.

For shiny surfaces or windows, a simple window cleaner will work. However, we prefer a mixture of vinegar and soap, which not only leaves surfaces shinier but also helps remove any limescale from the windows if present.

For floor cleaning, we recommend a non-acidic floor cleaner. Our top choice, based on our experience, is again Fairy, due to its chemical composition that ensures maximum cleanliness and shine without damaging the floor. In the case of real wood floors, we advise not to use any cleaning agent at all, but rather a semi-wet, wrung-out microfiber cloth.

In addition to the cleaning agents, the following equipment is essential for a thorough and efficient cleaning process:

- Floor mop
- Vacuum cleaner
- Two small microfiber cloths
- One large cloth for the floor
- A bucket
- Gloves
- 2 non-scratch Japanese sponges (Scotch-Brite)

All the above-mentioned cleaning products are part of our recommended cleaning system, designed to handle a variety of cleaning challenges while ensuring the longevity and appearance of the surfaces.
